

East views of Second Street in Dixon, around 1900 and 1950

East View of Second Street in Dixon, MO c.1950's. The Dixon Theatre movie house is shown on the right in front of the school bus. This the building where Brandt's and Dixon Weather Service is located in 2016. Submitted by Donna Knapp

EAST VIEW OF SECOND STREET - A view of Dixon looking east on Second Street prior to the streets being paved; showing board sidewalks; the first telephone office and switchboard on the left in the building that looks like a banner on the front and later the Dakes' Café operated by Roscoe V. and Gussie (Null) Dake (parents of Gloria J. (Dake) Martin; numerous horses, wagons, and carriages prior to automobiles.

The Dixon Square at the intersection of Elm Street and Second Street showing the pagoda where band concerts were held (Dixon had a town band). The Wainwright Drug Store is the white two story building on the right of Second Street. Across Elm Street on the right is the Modern Mercantile Store operated by Paris Alvin and Bertha Helen (Heller) Christeson; it was later purchased from them by Chester DeForest and Donna L. (Prewett) Parker and became the Modern IGA Grocery Store.
