

Lady Falcons looking to earn respect

Lady Falcon head coach Richard Ritz has endured a tough road at the helm of the Lady Falcon program over the last four years, mostly due to a dangerous lack of depth throughout his squad.

Hopefully this season that will improve, with the Lady Falcons boasting a full squad and hopefully a consistent starting five that will give Ritz a luxury he's been without during his coaching tenure at Lake County.

Nonetheless, he returns senior Carlee Rivers who has been on the court regularly since her freshman year and has played nearly every position on the court effectively. Rivers' leadership and intelligence on the court is an asset that few teams are lucky enough to have and will hopefully translate into increased success for both Rivers and the Lady Falcons on the court.

After being away from the team since her freshman year, Ayisha Hockett returns for her senior year and brings much needed talent and depth to the team. She was one of the most effective players on the team despite her age three years ago and should pick right up where she left off.

Emma York returns as well providing a much-needed spark at anytime and anywhere on the court whenever she is asked.

Sophomore Charlea Beth Wilson is also an added asset for the Lady Falcons and should make an immediate impact on the squad.

The Lady Falcons bring in a strong freshman class as well, with freshman Jashayla Lee currently averaging around 17 points per

The Lady Falcons have also looked good from the beginning of the season, downing Ripley in the team's home opener last week.

Regardless, they'll have a tough road in an overloaded District. Despite the strength of schedule, leadership and a solid core of players under the tutelage of Ritz may be enough to surprise many teams that the Lady Falcons face.
