Cold Steel or Death.

"There is but one small chance to save your life and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. B. Hunt, of Lime Ridge, Wis., by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jaundice. He didn't count the marvelous power of Electric Bitters to cure Stomach and Liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgeon's knife, now weighs more and feels better than ever. It is positively guaranteed to cure Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles and never disappears. Price 50c at P. M. Mark's drug store.

A Frightful Blunder

Will often cause a horrible Burn, Scald, Cut or Bruise. Bucklin's Arnica Salve, the best in the world, will kill the pain and promptly heal it. Cures Old Sores, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Boils, Felons, Corns, all Skin Eruptions. Best Pile cure on earth. Only 25 cts. a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by P. M. Mark, Druggist.

Frequent Coughing

inflames the lungs. Foley's Honey and Tar stops the coughing and heals the lungs. The ordinary cough medicines which are simply expectorants, will not do this, as they keep the lungs irritated in throwing of the phlegm.—Ed. Ruud.

W. L. Yancy, Paducah, Ky., writes: "I had a severe case of kidney disease and three of the best physicians in southern Kentucky treated me without success. I was induced to try Foley's Kidney Cure. The first bottle gave immediate relief and three bottles cured me permanently. I gladly recommend this wonderful remedy.—Ed. Ruud.

WAR HAMPERS THE MISSIONARIES

Its Effect on American Mission Workers in South Africa.

BY C. J. BOWDEN.

The war has seriously interfered with the mission work in South Africa. Although the natives have not as yet been drawn into the contest, they are deeply agitated by the stirring events going on around them, and the mission workers find themselves hampered in many other ways. Supplies are hard to get, and war prices reign. This is increasing the hardships of the missionaries, many of whom are provided with but scanty funds.

Most of the work of the American board of foreign missions in South Africa is confined to Natal. Almost all the stations are near the coast. There is one American mission, however, in Johannesburg. Scattered all through the interior are the missions of other countries.

Extensive work has been carried on in the Transvaal by the English Wesleyans and Berlin society. In the Orange Free State and in Cape Colony numerous British and German missionary societies are laboring, and in Basutoland the Evangelical Missionary society of Paris has met with great success. The English Wesleyan society, the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel and the Swedish missions have stations in sections of the colony where battles have recently taken place.

It is among the Zulus that the American missionaries in Natal do their work. These Zulus are interesting black people, who seem to take kindly to Christianity.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Bridgman were assigned to Infune Station, in South Africa, in August. They report that the kraals are still extant. The work involves great self sacrifice and hardship, especially since the beginning of the war.

In their own kraals, or villages, the Zulu homes are made up of a series of CALLING NATIVES TO MISSION SERVICE. huts like huge beehives, placed in circles, the cattle pen being in the center. The huts are about ten feet in diameter and five feet high. The single hole through which entrance must be made serves for door, window and chimney. No tables, chairs or beds are to be seen, only a few mats, pots and blankets. The men and women sleep on the ground. The usual clothing of the wild natives consists of a slight covering made of skins and sometimes ornaments of beads, skins and necklaces of lions' teeth or claws. The women wear an apron or a skin tied about the waist. The menial work, such as digging, carrying burdens and cutting wood, is all done by the women.

A Zulu's wealth is rated by his cattle and his wives. He exchanges from 10 to 20 cows for a wife and sells his own daughters for cattle. His wives, of whom he has as many as he can get, are simply slaves.

The chief faith of the Zulus is in witchcraft, goblins to be feared and appeased and in ancestral spirits to be worshiped. They use charms and exorcisms. The witch doctor, who is supposed to discern evil spirits, has great power over the people.

In a recent letter from South Africa Mrs. Bridgman describes a visit to a Zulu home. She says: "The kraal is perched on a treeless knoll, with a background of rolling hills and above the cloudless blue of our Natal sky. "We had to stoop very low and trawl in on our hands and knees. In a moment our eyes became accustomed to the dim, smoky light, and we saw the head man seated on a mat before the little hearth in the center. Two or three grown sons were sprawling around, smoking native hemp, which approaches opium in its injurious effects. We were given blocks of wood about six inches square, on which to try and make ourselves comfortable, while one by one the members of this large family entered and seated themselves in a circle around the huge pot of boiling Kaffir corn. "This hut is the best furnished of the four belonging to the lord of the family. Each of the three wives occupies a hut with her respective children and takes turns waiting upon her master. The life of a Zulu wife is a constant drudgery, for it is the happy lot of a Zulu husband to sit at home, comfortably smoking in the sunshine, while his wife toils all day."

We are not here to sigh and moan
And make our kindred sad;
We're here to do the best we can
Toward making others glad.
Cheer up, cheer up, and do not fret
If things don't come your way;
Be glad that some one else has luck—
