No Diphtheria.

It is two weeks since the last case of diphtheria has occurred in Fosston and it is now certain that there is no case of that disease in town nor likely to be for some time to come, thanks to the stringent measures promptly taken by the local board of health. There is now no danger of any further trouble on this score. Citizens and transients can feel perfectly safe from any danger of contagion. There have only been three mild cases altogether in the town and these have long since recovered.

The baseball game here last Sunday between Fosston and Brandsvold resulted in a victory of the former by a score of 21 to 6. During the early part of the game the Brandsvold boys done some excellent work, keeping the score down to 1 and 1 for a time, but later they lost their courage and gradually fell behind. Some good plays were made on both sides and the home team played together well.

Emma Jorgia, the 2 years and 3 months old daughter of Joen S. Hanson, of Lillo, who was visiting relatives in the town of Winger with her mother, was playing with other children at the home of Folke Nelson, and on Sunday afternoon about two o'clock was missed. A searching party at once set out to look for the little one but she was not found until Monday morning about nine o'clock when she was found about two miles and a half north of the place she started from laying in a large slough exhausted and all wet through, but all right, having been out all night. She was quickly turned over to her anxious mother.
