Harrah bond issues spark school safety

By John Martin
Staff Writer

Harrah school district residents gave an overwhelming stamp of approval for progress in the school system when they went to the polls last October and approved nearly $17 million in bond issues.

For the $16.7 million construction bond, the vote was 895 YES votes and 150 NO votes, a stunning 85.65% approval record. For the $600,000 transportation bond also on the ballot, the approval rate was slightly higher with 916 (86.58%) YES and 142 (13.42%) votes against the proposal.

School elections require 60% approval.

Members of the Long Range Planning Committee hammered out the details of the bond issue with two major details: (1) Safe rooms would be provided for every student in Harrah Schools, and (1) No tax increase.

And with school already in session for the 2016-17 term, students, teachers and parents can see evidence that those pledges have been kept.
