MONUMENTAL MEETS MODERN -- This architectural rendering by Howard & Helmer, Architects, provides a front elevation of USD 495's new elementary school building, blending modern educational principles with Pawnee County's historic past. (drawing courtesy USD 495)

The project, in pictures

Architectural renderings go a long way toward getting the point across.

These renderings provided to USD 495, by Howard & Helmer, Architects, illustrate how the district plans to promote the heritage of Pawnee County's residents, while meeting the needs of the modern elementary school paradigm.

These renderings and others, as well as a building floor plan and sample color schemes are available for viewing by the public in the USD 495 district office conference room.

VIEW FROM ABOVE -- This aerial view, looking southwest, features the building's classroom wings as well as the layout for busing and parking access, with playground spaces. The outline of the media center and the gymnasium are visible in the background.

INTERIOR ELEVATION, MEDIA CENTER -- The elementary school's media center immediately evokes the historic presence of the blockhouse at Fort Larned Historic Site, from its hexagonal shape to the post-and-beam ceiling.

FITNESS, INSIDE AND OUT -- The new weight room/fitness center at Larned High School, showing both interior and exterior elevations.
