BUSINESS

Holmes County

SPOTLIGHT

3rd Quarter 2017:

Petroleum company founded on wagon deliveries

Scott Petroleum was founded in 1935 as Scott Petroleum Gas by Solon Scott Sr., father of the present owner, as a distributor of liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) based in Itta Bena, Mississippi. Solon Scott Jr., the present owner, joined the company in 1957.

Over the following years, Scott Petroleum began a program of acquisition and expansion that has taken the company from its initial Itta Bena, Mississippi location to fourteen bulk plant locations covering North and Central Mississippi, Southeastern Arkansas, and Northeastern Louisiana.

Scott Petroleum initially began as a butane gas company delivering hand crafted tanks by horse drawn wagons, but through the aforementioned acquisitions and expansion, has expanded its product line to currently included LPG, gasoline, diesel, bio-diesel, aviation fuel, kerosene, attendant fittings, appliances, equipment, grease and oils.

Division II Manager Kenny Joiner, works in the areas covering south of Carrollton to Brandon, then from Sallis almost into Yazoo City.

“This division we have five propane trucks, three fuel trucks, four service crews and five locations in Holmes County,” said Joiner.

Twenty total employees in the county.

“It's one of the few that's still owned by one individual family, one man actually. Solon Scott, Jr. The main business was propane until about the 1980s. That's when they started doing fuel, diesel, gas, transports, those sorts of things. About that time he had only about four stores. Around 1988 he started expanding to Greenwood, Itta Bena, Belzoni and Tchula.

“To this day,” said Joiner, “it's around 44 locations, plus the only bio-diesel plant in the south. That's in Greenville.”

The plant produces bio-diesel for people around the world and greatly supports local agriculture as crops grown for bio-diesel are locally sourced.

Joiner said in his division its all about the petroleum. “We deal with oil, packaged oil, bulk oil, propane residential and commercial, fuel residential and commercial, service stations, convenience stores, and in Canton we actually sell chlorine.”

Joiner added that one very important factor in the industry is the weather itself. Cold, snowy winters and hot, rainless summers make for good business in both the residential and agriculture sides whether its heating homes or running crop irrigations systems.

“We do appreciate all the support we get from the county governments, the people in the county and of course our farmers,” Joiner added.
