

DURANT NEWS by Rowena Hill

The First Baptist Church Homecoming is finally here. So Many of our congregation and friends have worked very hard preparing for the celebration. All look forward to seeing and being together with lots of friends and former residents. Hope to see you there Sunday.

Mark and I spent most of Monday in Jackson at the doctor's office. Look forward to a good report.

We were very glad to see and be with Brother and Mrs. Billy Williams again Sunday while the pastor was at another church for the day. They are very special to us since he was interim several years ago when we were without a pastor.

Friends of Mrs. Katherine Cagle are very thankful she has been feeling some better lately.

All are thankful Plez White is getting along well after undergoing surgery during the week. Hope to see him out and about, feeling much better in a few days.

Mr. Francis Brantley is to be here for the homecoming at the church. Many friends here look forward to his return visits with friends and family.

Mr. Lewis Alexander made a visit to his doctor during the week. Our prayers are for both of them along with many others in the area.

We regret to hear that Bobby Jo Parks is a patient in a Jackson hospital. He has been a resident of the Durant Nursing Home for several years.

It seems that all I have tis week is news of sickness. There's not a lot to write about in our small town. Please call me with items of interest.

Mrs. Warren (Jaime) Conner and children of Millington, Tennessee, spent time last weekend with parents, Joey and Jackie Hill.

It's good to see Mrs. Pete Snell in church again. She hasn't been well for some time and we all miss her lots.

Mrs. Shirley Higginbotham, Bessie Easterling, Shirley Ables and this writer enjoyed a two-day visit with Leah Easterling O'Hara and others in Daphne, Alabama during the weekend of the hurricane. It was windy there but nothing bad.

Mrs. Mary Sue Burrell is now a resident of the Durant nursing home after being in Kosciusko with her family for some time. We welcome her back "home."

Lexington residents had the opportunity to sign up for the Salvation Army's 2017 Angel Tree Program from October 3 to October 4. Registration for low-income families was held at St. Paul Church of God in Christ's World Missions building. Salvation Army Lieutenant Jamaal Ellis (pictured above second from left), whose office is out of Greenwood, was present both days to accept applications from both senior adults aged 65 and up, and for children up to age 12. Distribution day for the program is December 15. Ellis said at least 20 families had currently been signed up through this event. Anyone who still wanted to participate in the Angel Tree Program can contact Ellis at 662-466-6440. Pictured above (from left), St. Paul missions coordinator, Clint Cobbins, and Ellis sign up Lexington resident Joyce Parks and Grady Dixon.
