

Timber Hill Winery born out of owner's passion

For being one of Wisconsin's newest wineries, Timber Hill Winery has a large selection with over 20 different wines to try.

When you walk in the door you are welcomed by owner and winemaker Amanda Stefl. While there, one can enjoy a wine-tasting at the tasting bar or sit down and enjoy a glass of wine with some cheese and crackers.

Stefl became interested in winemaking after receiving a degree in microbiology. From there, she took classes in wine making and winery management and started making her own batches of wine at home. After continuously receiving requests to purchase her wine, she decided to open Timber Hill Winery in Milton (1223 E Storrs Lake Rd #1) and fulfill those requests.

This summer, the winery is expanding by opening a new patio that will be perfect for enjoying a beautiful day with friends or an evening by the fire pit. The patio will provide relaxing ambiance for the summer and fall visitors who love the outdoors. Timber Hill Winery is situated less than one-quarter mile from the Ice Age National Scenic Trail and Glacier River Trail, which offers a perfect detour for a day of biking or hiking the trails.

The winery's tasting room is available for events hosted by patrons themselves, from simple relaxing get-togethers with family and friends to opportunities to create something unique. For example, jewelry parties have been held there.

"It's a good option if you're not up to cleaning your own house," Stefl said.

It's also an option for bridal showers, book clubs, ladies' nights or other similar events.

Since the winery features 20 different wines, people are bound to find a new favorite. One of the most popular varieties there is a spicy jalapeno wine that is great for blending and cooking. The winery has partnered with Bushel & Peck's of Beloit to sample the jalapeno wine with a locally made Bloody Mary mix.

"It's been fun to create partnerships with other local businesses like that," said Stefl.

Timber Hill has partnered with many other local stores that now offer a variety of its wines as well. While shopping in Piggly Wiggly stores in Milton, Edgerton and Jefferson, patrons can grab a bottle. Timber Hill wines are also available in all Wisconsin Hy-Vee stores and Woodman's in Madison and Janesville.

The winery also offers a monthly wine club, titled "The Herd." Herd memberships include invites to exclusive events, discounts on bottles, free tastings and a birthday reward. Members who live out of state can opt to have their wine shipped on a quarterly basis. Timber Hill can ship to more than 30 states.

wines in small batches to achieve the best quality. The grapes used are all cold climate varieties, which are ones that can grow here in Wisconsin.

"The best wines come from cold climate grapes," Stefl said.

Timber Hill buys as many local grapes as possible.
