

Tabler Furniture, providing great products to make your house the home of your dreams

Small town living offers folks a chance to focus in on what's really important. Here in small town USA, we don't have to deal with long, hectic commutes through heavy traffic filled with other angry motorists. And, yes, it is true that cities offer gourmet grocery stores, dining options with cuisine from Mongolian barbecue to Greek gyros, and retail establishments established to retail items from A - Z and back to A again. But the truth of the matter is that knowing it takes 15 minutes to get from your subdivision to nearest main road (assuming it's not rush hour or raining which triples the time) will keep you from taking advantage of most of those city perks most of the time.

Sure, you'll occasionally "swing by" on the way home from work (assuming the stop is on the appropriate side of the 4 lane, semi-divided race track), but you'll be in a hurry and in no mood for a pseudo-friendly chat with the stranger assisting you. After that uncomfortable exchange, you'll walk further than you desire, while dodging other would-be shoppers, to find your SUV parked next to the other 150 SUVs and then finally head home. It is then that you learn that your spouse is stuck in traffic and that you need to pick up little Suzie at the soccer field on 150th Avenue which is, of course, 15-25 minutes away. By the time you get home, have dinner, and relax for a bit, it's time to head to bed so you can start the routine all over again tomorrow. Living the dream you say? Sounds like fun...

In short rural America offers you the gift of time and a superior quality of life. Small towns are filled with people you know who care for you and are there for you when you need them. While we may not have all the restaurants and retail shops that today's modern capitalists crave, we've got what we need... that's where Tabler Furniture comes in.
