

Best Restaurant and Bar: The Opera House Restaurant

Over the past 11 years, the Opera House has been Weakley County Press reader's choice multiple times. Being chosen best bar 6 times and best bartender five, best caterer three times, four wins for best restaurant, best waitress three times and best steak 10. Throw in some wins for deserts, coffee and margaritas and you'll see why the restaurant is so popular in the Ken-Tenn area.

Since 2004, the Opera House Restaurant has been attracting people from near and far for its succulent steaks, artfully prepared dishes and decadent deserts. Readers of the Press are no strangers to the divine cuisine and dining experience this historic establishment has to offer, as they have once again voted the Opera House best steak, best bar/lounge/bartenders and restaurant in Weakley County and again this year, best caterer was added to their list of awards.

The building that houses the business is a renovated opera house built in the late 1800s and features exposed brick, pressed tin ceilings and belt-driven rotary fans in the lounge area that add to an ambience unrivaled in northwest Tennessee.

The owner, Edith Adcock, has created a warm and inviting atmosphere that welcomes everyone who enters and compels them to return again. Her son, Joseph Adcock, is the chef, and his talent in the kitchen has earned the restaurant quite a following.

follow a philosophy of using only the freshest ingredients in his cuisine. Everything from compound butters, to salad dressings, to sauces and entrée items are made by hand.

The Opera House has come to be best known for its steaks, hand-cut, wet-aged Black Angus beef seasoned with a special blend of spices and char grilled to order. This goal of perfection leaves no question as to why they have received the Best Steak Award for the 10th time in 11 years.

"The staff of the Opera House Restaurant would like to take this time to thank everyone who dines with them. We truly enjoy being a part of your most memorable moments, from engagements and birthdays to reunions and weddings. It makes us feel very special to be chosen as a place you can come to celebrate these wonderful moments in life. We hope that these memories stay as treasured by you, as you are by us. Thank you so very much."
