A man who stomped back into the scene of the crime wearing boots he had stolen 10 days before has been charged with trying to steal shoe shine for his stolen footwear.

The man, Jackie Blake Sanders, 35, is charged with theft and simple possession of drugs. His arrest came when police were called to Fluty's after he had been detained in the store on suspicion of shoplifting. When police arrived, they found he had been stopped from leaving because he had tried to conceal shoe shine without paying for it. They also found it wasn't the first time he had stolen from the establishment.

"Upon speaking to Sanders, it was discovered that the boots he was wearing had been taken from the store two weeks prior and a bottle of shoe shine had been taken that day," the police report revealed.

The issue kept getting worse for the stolen-boots-wearing shoplifter when officers searched his person incident to arrest. "A container was found in the right front pocket of his pants that contained a blue capsule found to be morphine and a small bag with approximately one gram of white crystal substance that later tested positive for meth," the report noted.

People who have unused or expired medications are urged to bring them by Smithville City Hall on Saturday, Oct. 27 as part of National Prescription Drug Take Back Day.

The take back event will be held locally at city hall from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Earlier this year, during the April event, more than 15 tons of drugs were collected nationwide.

People are encouraged to stop by the local take-back location to drop off their unused or expired medications, especially pain relievers and other prescription drugs. Health Care and law enforcement officers will be there to accept the medications and safely dispose of them with no questions asked.

"Two-thirds of Tennesseans said the main source of prescription pain pills for those who abuse them are family members or friends," said Lisa Cripps, coordinator of the DeKalb Prevention Coalition. "Take-back days are a safe and easy way to get these drugs out of your home."

If you are unable to attend this take-back event, visit <http://countitlockit-dropit.org/drop-box-finder/> to find a drop box.
