Trust in the Lord

Given the uncertainty of so much in our lives, the advice to trust in the Lord is almost always good advice. This is one of my father's favorite expressions, and while that gives me a certain fondness for the expression, I must admit that I am sometimes slightly irritated when told to trust in the Lord. The irritation comes from the sense that we have given up on solving the problem or issue ourselves and are relying now on God to solve our problem. But given the feebleness of most of our efforts, and the weakness of our minds to grasp all the complexities of most situations, we certainly need God's help. It is usually pride, pride in our own efficacy and our own understanding, which makes us think we can solve our problems all by ourselves. There is nothing wrong with being a good problem solver, and indeed, the better we are at solving problems, the better our lives will be, both at home and at work, but we should always still realize that there are huge gaps in our understanding. We just don't know what we don't know, but should trust that God has everything under control.

"Trust in the Lord with all your heart, and do not lean on your own understanding."

Proverbs 3:5
