A group of motorcycle enthusiasts is encouraging the community to kick-start for a good cause.

The Warren County A&L Fair has added Bike Night and Show on Sept. 14. The event is held by Silent Creed Motorcycle Club to benefit Kids of the Community and Warren County Emergency Food Bank.

Silent Creed is a small group of civic-minded, motor enthusiasts who strive to give back to the community in which they live.

"We're just a bunch of guys who like riding bikes," said club president

Darren Turner. "We use our comradery to help folks. We enjoy giving back to the community by offering different events, such as benefit dinners and other things."

Registration for the bike show begins at 5 p.m. and ends at 6 p.m. The cost to enter a bike will be a nonperishable food item that will be donated to the food bank.

Show classes will include antique/vintage class 1984 and older, trikes, metric class (cruisers and sport), rat bike, bagger class, custom builds, and best of show.

Entry bikes are asked to meet at Lowe's at 5:15 p.m. and ride in as a group to the fair. The event is being held in the center ring in front of the grandstands. For those unable to make it, register at the event before 6 p.m.

Voting starts at 6 p.m. and ends at 8:30 p.m. Monetary donations are required to vote. Those funds will be donated to Kids of the Community.

Winners will be announced at 9 p.m. For more information, contact Turner at 931-808-3457.

Matheny

At first, crack cocaine was the major drug problem, but meth, crudely synthesized in makeshift labs, became the popular drug, he explained. The onslaught of cocaine nearly doubled the local inmate numbers by the end of his first year as the county's sheriff.

"We've tried every kind of program" to combat illicit drugs and addiction, but "it's going to take a miracle to solve this," Matheny told the Rotary audience. In the radio interview, he called for "divine intervention" to boost human efforts against the chemical substances that wreck lives and families.

Regarding jail expansion, Matheny stressed the county has no choice but to pay whatever is required. The Tennessee Department of Corrections can "severely penalize" the county if the population reaches 350 in a facility designed to house 251.

"Or they can shut us down," forcing Warren County to outsource its inmates in other detention facilities and pay a daily room-and-board rate, a situation that could saddle local taxpayers with hefty costs while the basic problem remains untouched.

Interjecting some levity in his review of his 24 years as sheriff, he recalled a UFO panic that struck some parts of the county early in his tenure.

Some citizens apparently mistook aerial fireworks for interplanetary invaders. Overflights by medical helicopters or military aircraft fueled the hysteria.

In at least one encounter, he met an anxious resident at his front door and noticed the man was wearing what looked like a helmet fashioned out of aluminum foil. The contraption, the gentleman explained, was his protection against invasive radio waves directed by aliens to control the minds of earthlings.

The half-hour interview on public radio WCPI 91.3 will air Tuesday at 5 p.m., Wednesday at 5 a.m., Thursday at 1 p.m., and Friday at 1 a.m.

Civic Center renovation costs to be known soon

The recreational delay is almost over.

Bids are being accepted for renovation and expansion of McMinnville Civic Center. Actual cost of the project will be known Thursday, Sept. 13 at 2 p.m.

"We gave it two weeks, rather than one," said McMinnville Parks and Recreation director Scott McCord. "We hope giving two weeks gives a better opportunity for pricing on contractors."

McMinnville officials are bracing for sticker shock, given the rising cost for material and labor.

"I hope I'm wrong, but I do believe there will be sticker shock when the bids come back in," said Alderman Everett Brock, who chairs the city's Finance Committee.

Warren County Jail expansion was estimated at $6.5 million. The actual cost came in at $8.3 million.

Estimated cost for the Civic Center project from Hart, Freeland Roberts Design was $6.1 million. It includes $3.5 million to renovate the existing Civic Center, $751,340 for a south addition, and $1.8 million for an east addition.

Brock presented more than one cost estimate for financing the project. Brock said a $6 million Civic Center project would be an annual payment of approximately $400,000 for the next 20 years and a $9 million project would be an annual payment of $600,000.

The bid opening will be held at City Hall.

Sunday in the Bible Belt

Liberty CPC aims to draw people to Christ, not proselytize like many churches. Proselytize means to convert someone to another belief or opinion. According to DeBerry, their goal is for people to become believers. In fact, she says not everybody would feel comfortable at the Presbyterian Church.

"They need to be where they will grow and can exercise their spiritual gifts," said DeBerry. "I don't believe we would be doing right by going after other church folk. We are not going to proselytize. We are concerned about the folks who don't know Him at all. That's who I want to reach ... those that do not know the Lord."

As a liturgical church, the congregation uses various orders of service, which is provided in a bulletin that members and visitors can use during worship. Like some churches, they observe the liturgical calendar. A typical service includes, music and singing, prayer, recitation of the Apostles' Creed, sermon, Bible classes and an informal Bible study.

When asked about any misconceptions, DeBerry shared one important message.

"People make the mistake of equating the church with God and they are two separate entities," said DeBerry. "The churches are made up of fallible human beings and God is infallible and His Word is infallible. They get mad at God when they are hurt at church and that is because we are human."

Liberty CPC is located on 317 Liberty Lane. For more information on service times, visit www.libertycpc.org or call 473-3813. To learn more about the beliefs, ministries, history and structure of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, go to www.cumberland.org.
