arrested in Georgetown and charged with murder in July of 2015. He was transferred to the Johnson Detention Center on March 31 of last year, where he remains.

Bowers' trial begins almost a year after Brenda Roberts was found guilty of accessory after the fact to murder. Roberts, 69 when convicted, received 14 years in prison for her role in the cover-up of the murder.

Prosecutors successfully argued that Roberts washed and then destroyed the blood-soaked clothes worn by Bowers during the commission of the alleged crime.

The April term of 8th Circuit Court in Laurens will begin with jury selection for the trial Monday morning at the Hillcrest Square Judiciary Complex.
