

Danhauer Drug Store – Simplifying Your Life!

Jeffrey Danhauer, along with his father, William Edward Jr., are the owners of Danhauer Drugs in Owensboro, Kentucky. "It's been a family business for 114 years, says Jeff Danhauer. "My grandfather opened the drugstore in 1904, just three years after Walgreens started and much earlier than CVS or many of the other retail pharmacies known today". The drugstore serves many of the surrounding communities as well as its hometown of Owensboro. You might wonder why a drugstore in Owensboro is serving people outside of Daviess County; well the answer includes a number of reasons: One very compelling reason is Danhauer Drugs specializes in "Custom Medication Packaging" while still providing a traditional full service pharmacy.

Custom packaging is a huge convenience to folks who have numerous medications they need to take every day. It's a technology that was originally started in the hospitals, and Danhauer Drugs adopted the technology about 20 years ago. "We began using it for the nursing homes we service, and then later it evolved with our homebound patients. When the elderly start getting confused, accidentally skipping medications or taking additional meds because they can't remember if they took them or not, it usually leads to the need for assisted living. Our custom packaging service has proven to keep people in their homes longer. They aren't skipping doses anymore or taking additional doses," says Jeff. Picking up a box of packaged medications once a month (with the exception of Owensboro where they deliver free) simplifies people's lives.

"Each packet has a date and time printed on it, so there is no confusion what time the medication is needed each day, or even multiple times throughout the day, and there is absolutely no charge for this specialized service we provide", said Jeff Danhauer. If you travel a lot for work or for pleasure, it's also a great service for people on the go! You don't have to wonder, where's that bottle? Is it in the car? Is it in my purse? You don't have to carry around six bottles; you only have to open a packet. The process requires a single initial consultation of all the medications a person is prescribed (in a 30 day cycle) including daily vitamins. "We've received great feedback from over 100 patients on the program", says Jeff.

Not only has custom medication packaging been a strong reason people choose Danhauer Drugs, their employees are very care conscious. "Personalized Service is the core of our business, says Jeff Danhauer. "Everyone who works here touches the patient in some way". We have 35 employees that consist of drivers, technicians, caregivers and pharmacists. Someone is always following up with every one of our patients to make sure everything is ok. "No one is ever a number here; they are always a family member to us," stated Jeff, and a real person always answers the phone".

In addition to the specialty services

Danhauer provides, patients can also benefit from their diabetes management, their wound care, medical equipment, and a complete department of respiratory services, including oxygen supplies, C-pap, etc. They also provide full in-house billing services and accept most all insurances (including Humana and Anthem).

Jeff Danhauer plays an active role in the Daviess County community. His pharmacy serves several nursing homes, group homes, and healthcare facilities throughout Daviess County and the surrounding areas. Jeff's father, William Danhauer Jr. is still very active in the store today, at 91 years of age, and as a matter of fact he is known to be the longest-standing registered pharmacist in Kentucky. William Danhauer, Jr. has a lot of wisdom to offer his fellow employees. He was personally involved on the Kentucky Board of Health during the 1960s and feels strongly that giving back is one of the most important aspects of the job. His son, Jeffrey Danhauer, has been involved in several organizations as well; including the Kentucky Pharmacists Association and other professional organizations. William Danhauer, Jr. has helped a multitude of patients in his 68 years as a pharmacist, and his pharmacy continues this legacy of service. True to this day, still rings Danhauer Drugs' motto: "Faithful to your trust since 1904."

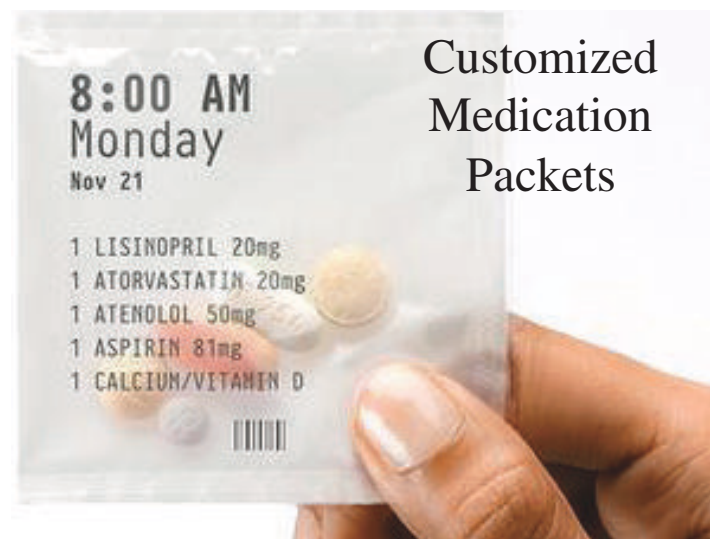

Danhauer Drugs and its health care team are committed to providing the highest quality health care services in a friendly, knowledgeable, and cost effective manner.
