

Palm Beach County Property Appraiser's Office Unveils Website Redesign

WEST PALM BEACH – The Palm Beach County Property Appraiser's Office announced the launch of the redesigned Property Appraiser Public Access

(PAPA) website. "PAPA is the number one "go to" for all property records in Palm Beach County and that has not changed," said Dorothy Jacks, CFA, AAS, PBC Property Appraiser. "The new design and site architecture is a perfect platform that will continue to be a vital resource of our outreach and education to the taxpayers and serve as a critical daily function for many businesses and organizations throughout the County," she said.

Originally developed in 1994, the redesigned PAPA is immediate and friendly to users with a fresh, responsive and approachable design. The feedback has been overwhelmingly positive.

"There are a number of functions that will be most useful, but I particularly love the Nearby Sales Search, said Simon P. Isaacs, Property Matters in Boca Raton. The More Options tab allows users to search for sales in the area - really well done."

PAPA provides users with access to an array of online tools to help them get their questions answered, to gain an understanding of the function(s) of the Property Appraiser's Office and to keep taxpayers informed about important notices and deadlines throughout the tax roll year.

New features include:
 • Improved Navigation options, with more choices in dropdown menus
 • An enhanced sales

search function for real property and tangible personal property

• Introduction of My-PAPA, an application that allows you to personalize and filter your search results.

To better engage visitors using multiple communication devices, PAPA uses a "responsive" design that meets user needs on desktop displays, smart phones (PAPA mobile), laptop computers, ChromeBooks, and tablet devices.
