

Kids Outstanding In Their Potato Field

The Potato Scramble was originally started to help kids better understand how potatoes grow and are harvested. This year is being sponsored by Country Financial. Held in a potato field, the Potato Scramble gives children ages four to sixteen an opportunity to hunt for potatoes in their very own potato patch.

The rewards are great, as each specially marked potato will earn the pint-size pickers shiny new 50-cent pieces. As an added bonus, kids get to take their freshly picked spuds home for dinner!

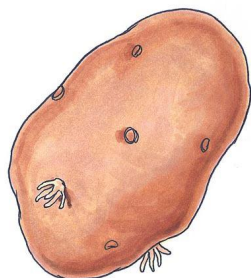

Participants are divided into six different age categories and assigned to a designated picking area. Armed with five-quart ice cream pails, the "tator tots" (age 4 and under) start the Scramble. Parents are asked to use good judgment in determining their little one's ability to participate as the field gets very full of pickers and parents and siblings are not allowed to help.

No registration is required. The Scramble is held Saturday morning immediately following the adult picking contest at approximately 10:45 a.m.

A total of $250 in prize money will be awarded.
