

Chalk Art Contest

September 20 at the Obion County Public Library

Young artists can thank Simmons Bank for the financial giant's 11th year of sponsorship of the popular CornFest Chalk Art Contest. Students from kindergarten through their senior year in high school are eligible to participate and may bring their own array of chalk in pastel, bright or a mixed array of colors. Three free pieces of chalk will be provided for all artists who need it.

Sign-up for the creative activity, showcased on the sidewalks in the back yard of the Obion County Public Library, will begin at 3:30 p.m. Sept. 20. All artistic efforts must be completed by 5 p.m. The original designs will stay in place until natural forces erase them for another year, said Lisa Isbell, longtime chairman of the event.

To whet the appetites of "starving artists," Snappy Tomato will be handing out free pizza slices, and Union City Coca-Cola will provide soft drinks, without charge, to quench their thirst as they let their imaginations roam free and chalk it all up to another fun event for CornFest participants.

Everyone is invited to stay to hear the music of Roger Day in the library's amphitheater

CFO of your life: Realized

Being in financial control is a common dream. Where everything operates like clockwork, and you realize your potential. To help you achieve this, we have products — checking, savings, mobile and online banking — that put you in charge of your finances, and ultimately, your life.

Realize your dream with personal banking products from Simmons Bank.

Dreams: Realized

Simmons Bank

MEMBER FDIC

simmonsbank.com/bank

Fees may apply. See your service provider for details.