Participating in holiday gift pools

There are a number of reasons, financial and otherwise, to team up with friends, family members or co-workers for Christmas shopping. Here are four of them.

1. You save money
Pooling together to buy a gift is an especially good option when the recipient lives in another city. You'll save money on the costs for packaging and transport.
2. You save time
You and the others involved in the pool will spend less time figuring out what to buy by brainstorming as a team.
3. You can give a more original gift
Make use of each person's creative talents to craft a present that's handmade or highly personalized.
4. You can give a more extravagant gift
Pooling resources means having a larger budget. You'll have the option of spending more to get something beyond what you could afford on your own.
