

The 1899 22HP Minneapolis Return Flue engine. The engine, owned by Jeff Knutson, underwent a complete rebuild with a new boiler in 2008.

boiler in 2008. "Shortly after the open engine was restored, Tom Dillion and Mike Wahl spent time with me on it. It is the most action you can get in a short amount of time. You are constantly having to throw in sticks and watch everything closely to maintain high pressure," Kelsey commented.

In her nine years out at Steamer Hill, she has also spent some time belted to the sawmills cutting logs down into lumber and pallets in her bib overalls and flannel. "Don't forget the matching bandana," Trevor chuckled and went on to say, "She 'accessorizes' well."

Trevor and Kelsey met on Steamer Hill and, well, let's just say, sparks flew.

When you ask folks what they like about WMSTR, they will almost always say the comradery or the friendships forged through steam power. "I've had some of the same friends for over twenty years that I only see once a year. People I've met from all over the world like Canada and Ireland. And when we meet up again, it's like we haven't missed a day," Trevor shared.

In 2015, Trevor and Kelsey met during the annual softball game that takes place during Steamer School weekend. I hear it's a pretty lax game that involves costumes and lots of fun. While Trevor was playing center field, Kelsey came right out to the field and introduced herself. "It's nice
