Curiosity Corner: Trivia quiz

Let's have a quiz. I've been lenient on giving you one lately. How about a trivia quiz on a popular subject... money! Particularly, paper bills. Most of us can tell who is on the front of each bill. How about the backside?

Here's each bill — what is depicted on the back of each one?

- $1
- $2
- $5
- $10
- $20
- $50
- $100

Unfortunately, that's as far as I can go. Since 1969, the $100 note is the largest issue.

Answers:
I'll tell you whose picture is on the front, too, in case you don't remember.

- $1 (George Washington): The Great Seal of the United States
- $2 (Thomas Jefferson): A portrait of the signing of the Declaration of Independence
- $5 (Abraham Lincoln): The Lincoln Memorial
- $10 (Alexander

Hamilton): The United States Treasury

- $20 (Andrew Jackson): The White House
- $50 (Ulysses Grant): The United States Capitol
- $100 (Benjamin Franklin): Independence Hall

So, how did you do? Pretty easy, right? I could have asked a few tough questions about the back of that $2 bill. The original painting is by John Trumbull, from 1790. Take note of the person standing with the wide-brimmed hat — the only one in the picture with a hat, standing in roughly the 11 o'clock position. Interestingly, Trumbull's painting included people who did not support or sign the Declaration of Independence.

It is believed that the fellow with the hat is John Dickinson, a Pennsylvania Quaker who opposed American independence.

You only get stuff like that in the Curiosity Corner! And don't feel too bad if you didn't do well on the quiz. I didn't either. I don't use legal tender too often in this plastic credit card age. Does anybody?
