Koeltzow Homes proud to offer homes at Castle Heights in Tuttle

Castle Heights is a Tuttle housing addition, a hidden gem, four blocks South of Highway 37 on Jeffreys Drive in total. There are 15 lots left out of 36. The lots are three eighths to a half acre in size and that includes water, natural gas, sewer, third Street and will soon have fiber optics. It's a short walk from the middle school to the addition with sidewalks. The square footage requirements are 2000 ft.² with two-to-three side load garages.

Tom Koeltzow, builder and manager of Koeltzow Homes, said of the addition, "It's a very nice and quiet community ideal for either a group raising kids with sidewalks in the school available to them, and it's also like a lovely place to retire. The addition is about three blocks from the grocery store and people really like that. The school itself is a draw. Since the 80s, we've won over 100 state championships. That continues every year."

A prime source to judge Tuttle's growth and quality of life, Koeltzow is a Tuttle housing developer. So what does he think of Tuttle's recent growth? "I think it's expected with everything Tuttle has to offer and the infrastructure coming out to Highway 4," Tom suggested. "With the residential growth, I think we can expect some business growth also."

The quality of life for a community is determined partly by its growth. With the building of homes come jobs. With each house built, it requires dirt work, foundation work, cement work, termite spraying, framing, plumbing, insulating, drywall installation, wiring, cabinet & trim installation, bricklaying, roofing, heat & air and tile & carpet installation. Each phase requires people, people specifically trained or licensed to complete that work.
