Creating Your Dream Home

By Linda Dillon

If you haven't heard of THE GLASS FACTORY, you're going to want to visit this store. The Glass Factory, owned by Scott and Robin Poynter, is an exquisite home decor and accessory store in Owensboro, KY. Scott and Robin recently moved their store from Hwy 54 to Wesleyan Park Plaza (where the former Bakers Rack was located). With the recent move last October, they added beautiful new home furnishings along with an extensive bridal registry that boasts the most up-to-date dishware.

As you enter the new store in the Wesleyan Park Plaza, your going to feel a sense of “Ah”.... followed by wow! The store provides many displays of gorgeous quality furniture, rugs and dishware that will help you create “your dream home” and the products are built to last for years. “A lot of people see ideas on Pinterest and they just don’t know where to go”, says Scott. “We have so many sources from all over the world; you can get exactly what you need here, and we have things most other stores just don’t have.”

The Glass Factory carries sofas, coffee tables, dining tables, lighting and accessories. Scott's sister, Lori, works at the store along with Kellie Hendrix, the store manager, who is a kind and knowledgeable sales consultant. She provides interior design services as well, if needed. "The Glass Factory's goal is to make every customer happy", says Scott, "and on social media, especially Facebook, we'll post our finished products. When those customers who purchased the products see the post, they actually comment about it. That's what draws people in! The Glass Factory truly is a unique shopping experience, and they want to see what that experience is all about. We work with you - we're not here to just sell you a product."

The Glass Factory is also known for its front entries and stained glass. Whether its new construction, existing homes, or even commercial, its always an amazing line. "A standard stained glass project usually takes about two-three weeks, but major projects like Eaton Memorial Church are anything but standard", stated Scott. He designed and constructed seven 11-foot panels for the Eaton Memorial, which took about a year to finish.

Scott also provides stained glass classes in the back of his store. "My love for stained glass, front entries (and restoration of both), started with my father's interest in 1978." Scott learned the skill of creating stained glass by working alongside his dad as a youngster. He quickly learned many aspects of art from tagging along in Dad's classroom after school. "It was like a kid's playground—crayons, chalk, clay, paint, and pottery. I was blessed with my dad's talent...I've always been drawn to it. I put everything that I have into the business; it's all my love..."

In addition to his dad's primary impact, Jim Shrewsberry, his high school drafting teacher, was another influence. Scott explained his art is more freestyle, but drafting involves precision and straight lines. Those two skill sets combined helped him hone his artistic skills and his love of architecture.

"When I see my finished products and see the happiness in the faces of people, it keeps me going," Scott said. He admits he can get quite emotional about it and finds satisfaction in knowing that one day when he's long gone, those artistic products are still going to be there.
