That's a true journalist right there, always prioritizing the story.

I obliged, headed to the school, and waited impatiently for results, deciding it was likely a heart attack.

His diagnosis came in last week. Stage 4 pancreatic cancer.

Heartbroken. I am absolutely heartbroken. I'll never understand why bad things happen to good people.

Regardless of my understanding, one thing can be said about a small business in a small community like this. Everyone gets close and everyone feels everyone else's pain.

I've received countless inquiries about the "health of everyone" here at the R-H.

Larry starts chemotherapy next week. His prognosis is anywhere from three months to three years, depending on his reaction to the chemo.

Tom is still recovering at home, but checks in to help when he's up to it, and I need his advice often.

Clevis is anywhere and everywhere he is needed, whether that be doing Roving Photography at the Dollar General Market, covering Fiscal Court, or getting me an Iced Coffee at McDonald's... he is my go-to guy and undoubtedly an answered prayer.

Angelina Alcott, Leise Long and Anne

Gorin all seem to be in good health.

Pete Bell is still delivering away.

...and Walt Gorin you ask? He is the healthiest person I have ever met, so there's that.

Me? I'm fine. A little stressed, a little worried about everyone and everything, but everything will be fine.

People often ask, How have you fared so well? My answer is always the same, "God gave me diabetes, guess He figured that was enough... and who else would do all the pages?" Gotta have humor in this life.

In all seriousness, I am very, very thankful and I'm feeling especially blessed these days.

If you get a few minutes and are the praying type, say a big prayer for Larry and Tom. They do a darn good job and I need them back. I can't compare to what they do, and who knows if we can find anyone that can.

How someone can get lucky enough to have two awesome editors at one smalltown newspaper, I'll never know.
