Kentucky Fish and Wildlife hiring

Applications are now being accepted for dozens of conservation officer positions with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Application deadlines are soon, and vary by posting.

Applicants must be 21 years old and possess a valid driver's license. Peace Officer Professional Standards (POPS)-certified candidates with at least two years of law enforcement experience are preferred.

Positions are available in 37 counties. Applicants may apply for the counties of their choice. Available counties are: Boone, Boyd, Breckinridge, Calloway, Carroll, Carter, Casey, Christian, Clinton, Cumberland, Daviess, Fayette, Fulton, Garrard, Graves, Grayson, Harrison, Henry, Jefferson, Jessamine, LaRue, Lawrence, Leslie, Madison, Martin, Meade, Owen, Perry, Pike, Powell, Pulaski, Robertson, Spencer, Trimble, Webster, Whitley and Woodford.

To apply, go online to personnel.ky.gov and click "Find a Job." Applicants must fully complete the online application through My Purpose to be considered for further review.

Selected applicants will undergo 12 weeks of training in the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Academy before being placed with a field-training officer for 16 weeks of hands-on training. Applicants must pass a written test, physical fitness test, swimming test, oral interview, psychological and drug screen, polygraph, background review and medical evaluation to be considered for selection.

Applicants will be notified via email regarding the written test scheduling. Applicants should frequently check their email, including junk mail folders, after a posting closes. An initial email to applicants will include important, time-sensitive information, and recipients will be required to respond by a specific date.

Kentucky's conservation officers are sworn law enforcement officers with a primary mission focus on hunting, fishing and boating enforcement. In their everyday role, conservation officers ensure compliance with hunting and fishing laws and ensure that the state's waterways are a safe place for all to enjoy by utilizing a two-pronged approach consisting of education and enforcement.

To report suspected illegal activity, call 1-800-25-ALERT or contact the nearest Kentucky State Police post.
