CU schedules MLK Jr. and Black History Month Chapel speakers

JOAN C. MCKINNEY
CU OFFICE OF COMMUNICATIONS

Campbellsville University will be celebrating Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Black History Month during chapel series in January and February.

The series is co-sponsored by Greater Campbellsville United.

All chapels are free and open to the public each Wednesday at 10 a.m. in Ransdell Chapel at 401 N. Hoskins Ave., Campbellsville.

Dr. F. Bruce Williams, senior pastor at Bates Memorial Baptist Church in Louisville since 1986, will lead the series with the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Chapel Service Jan. 23.

Williams is a "powerful speaker and preacher," according to Dr. John Chowning, co-chair of Greater Campbellsville United along with Yvette Haskins. "Williams' church has grown exponentially during his tenure and now has more than 5,000 members and multiple services and community ministries," Chowning, who also serves as executive assistant for government, community and constituent relations, to Dr. Michael V. Carter, president of Campbellsville University. The Amazing Tones of Joy, a highly regarded gospel choir from Western Kentucky University, will perform in The Gheens Recital Hall in the Gosser Fine Arts Center, 210 University Drive, Campbellsville, at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 7. The concert is open to the public with free admission.

Dr. Gerald L. Smith, a distinguished professor of history at the University of Kentucky, will speak at chapel Feb. 20 for the Black History Month observance. He serves as pastor of Pilgrim Baptist Church in Lexington and is a historian of national renown relative to African American history, the life and legacy of King and the Civil Rights Movement, Chowning said.

Smith is editor of the Kentucky African American Encyclopedia and author of numerous publications and articles.

All chapel programs are televised on WLCU and are streamed live on wlcu.com.
