

Lawrence George Rowell Jr., 63

Lawrence George Rowell Jr., 63, of Campbellsville died Jan. 25, 2019 surrounded by family.

Born in Moultrie, Ga., Larry was the son of the late Lawrence George Rowell Sr. and Earlene Wilson Rowell. He never met a stranger and had friends around the world.

He was a licensed real estate broker and past president of Rowell Realty and Auction Co. He became a minister in 1978 and served as associate pastor of Beargrass Christian Church in Louisville and pastor of First Baptist Church in Lyons, Ga. He and his family were missionaries in Burkina Faso, Ivory Coast and Nigeria. After returning to the states, he was minister of education at Campbellsville Baptist Church and pastor of Beech Grove Baptist Church in Black Gnat.

Larry was a staff writer and editor of the Casey County News in Liberty and interim editor for the Greensburg Record-Herald in Greensburg. He was also involved in the community through Kiwanis and was a chaplain for the Campbellsville Taylor County Rescue Squad as well as serving on the Taylor, Adair and Casey County Foster Parent Review Boards.

Larry was a mem-

The Ten Commandments

Thou shalt have no other gods before me.
 Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image.
 Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain.
 Remember the sabbath day to keep it holy.
 Honor thy father & thy mother.
 Thou shalt not kill.
 Thou shalt not commit adultery.
 Thou shalt not steal.
 Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour.
 Thou shalt not covet.

(Exodus 20:3-17)

Rejoice in the hope. Endure under tribulation. Persevere in prayer.

The Good Life

The ancient philosophers agreed on the value of philosophy to the good life. While this may seem like self-praise, it is simply the recognition that life is problematic, and that happiness, virtue and the good life are not things that just happen. A life well-lived must be planned, and worked at, and reflected upon. Socrates considered that living well, in the sense of being a good person and living virtuously, was so important that he spent his entire adult life questioning people who claimed to know about virtue, famously saying that "the unexamined life is not worth living." Unfortunately for Socrates, the so-called experts didn't know as much as they thought, and Socrates' role as a social critic led to his downfall. Aristotle stressed the importance of philosophy to the good life because he thought that the part of the soul which understands should be the guiding element in life, saying "the human good proves to be activity of the soul in accord with virtue, and indeed with the best and most complete virtue, if there are more virtues than one." Ironically, the ancients seemed to understand that life is complicated and requires deep thought to figure it out, whereas in our more complicated modern times, we seem to drift through life without giving much thought to the most important questions, such as the meaning of life and how to live a good life. Look around at all the unhappy people who think that happiness is just a feeling or a psychological state and that if only they take the right pill, or amuse themselves with the right entertainment, they will be happy. - Christopher Simon
