We never worry that the supermarket will be out of food or that a pair of work shoes can only be purchased on the black market. We are not required to carry special papers to travel from one state to another. We do not live in fear of being jailed or tortured because of our political or religious beliefs. These are very real concerns of people in other countries, but not here. I appreciate the words of General George Patton when he said “It is foolish and wrong to mourn the men who died. Rather, we should thank God that such men lived.” Let us all do just that. From the very beginning, Memorial Day has been a time for Americans to stand together and say, “Thank you. We remember you. We are grateful to you.” Let us continue that tradition today. As always, please contact me with your thoughts and ideas on topics we may address in the interim and during the 2020 legislative session. I can be reached here at home anytime, or through the toll-free message line in Frankfort at 1-800-372-7181. If you would like more information, or to e-mail me, please visit the legislature’s website www.legislature.ky.gov.

Young named principal

Young says she looks forward to building relationships with faculty and staff, students and the community to build a positive learning environment. “I’m certain the community is already very supportive of GCIS, but I would like to work on building even more community involvement within the school,” Young said. “I would love to have parents become more involved at school and see firsthand the exciting things the teachers at GCIS offer their children daily.” In addition, Young also plans to work closely with the GCIS PTO. “The PTO is a great support system to successful functioning of the building,” she said. “They provide a strong link to the community and can be a great support for teachers.” The Intermediate School, with students in grades third through fifth grade, had approximately 370 students in the 2018-19 school year. “This age is very inquisitive and still has an excitement for learning,” Young said. Superintendent Hodges says her love of children and success is obvious. “Ms. Donna is very motivated and has a deep passion for the success of all children,” Hodges said. Young looks forward to getting her feet wet. “I plan to start in June getting to know the community and doing home visits in order to get to know students and their families,” she said. “I’m going to take the summer to get familiar with GCIS as a whole and work on plans for next year.” “My goal will be to provide both teachers and students with the support they need to progress and be successful.”
