Gov. Bevin's pension-relief bill passes in a close vote

By TOM LOFTUS
COURIER JOURNAL

Gov. Matt Bevin's bill to provide pension relief to regional universities, health departments and other "quasi-governmental agencies" passed a crucial test on Monday when members of the Kentucky House approved the plan 52-46. The General Assembly is meeting in a special legislative session, which Bevin called last week in order to pass the bill. The House vote came after three hours of debate. The bill now goes to the Senate for a vote. On Saturday, the House State Government Committee approved the bill on an 11-8 vote over objections of Democrats who warned it is likely to slash pension benefits anticipated by a few thousand public employees.

Also Saturday, state Attorney General Andy Beshear, who is running for governor against Bevin, said the bill may be susceptible to a court challenge because Bevin's call for the special session was too restrictive. "... The constitution limits the governor to outlining the topic or the subject that may be considered — not the exact terms that the legislature must adopt," Beshear said Saturday.

Bevin's office discounted Beshear's claims, noting the legislature's option of adjourning without passing the bill if its members aren't convinced of the bill's merits.

Bevin's bill, House Bill 1, would give the affected agencies a one-year delay in paying much-higher pension costs, which went into effect July 1.

The bill also gives these groups options for paying off their liabilities to the troubled state pension plan and getting out of it.

Republican Party announces Lincoln Dinner, special guest

The Republican Party of Kentucky announced its 2019 Annual Lincoln Dinner, with special guest Kayleigh McEnany, national press secretary for President Donald J. Trump's 2020 campaign. The event will be held on Saturday, August 17th in Lexington.

"Kentuckians are seeing firsthand what happens when our Republican leaders partner with President Trump," McEnany said. "Leaders like Governor Bevin, Leader McConnell and others are standing strong with President Trump to take Kentucky's and our nation's economies to new heights. I look forward to coming to the Commonwealth to communicate that message and remind Kentuckians why President Trump needs Governor Bevin to help Make Kentucky and America Great Again."

"We're delighted to have Kayleigh McEnany as this year's special guest for our 2019 Lincoln Dinner," Republican Party of Kentucky Chairman Mac Brown said. "She is a strong voice for President Trump's vision and record, and we're proud to welcome her to Kentucky to help us celebrate all that Republican leadership continues to accomplish for our state."

Kayleigh McEnany is the national press secretary for President Trump's 2020 re-election campaign. She formerly served as national spokesperson for the Republican National Committee. Prior to joining the RNC, Kayleigh worked as a political commentator at CNN, featured throughout Election 2016 programming. Kayleigh graduated from Harvard Law School with a Juris Doctor and Georgetown University School of Foreign Services with a degree in international politics.

McEnany will be joined by Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, Governor Matt Bevin and other Kentucky Republican elected officials and candidates.
