Did you know?

Psoriasis is a common skin ailment that affects approximately 7.5 million people in the United States, according to the American Academy of Dermatology. While psoriasis affects people in all age groups, it is primarily seen in adults — with the highest rates of affliction among those between the ages of 45 and 64. The most common form of psoriasis is called “plaque psoriasis,” which is characterized by raised patches of reddish skin with silvery-white scale. Between 25 and 30 percent of those with psoriasis will also experience complementary joint inflammation that produces symptoms of arthritis. This is called psoriatic arthritis. Although there is no cure for psoriasis, which is believed to be an autoimmune disorder, it can be managed with topical treatments for mild cases or immune-suppressing medications for severe cases.
