

Science museum to host kids' summer camps

Press Release Natural Science day camps Children can get outdoors and explore nature at MDWFP's Mississippi Museum of Science and Nature this summer. Age-appropriate camps are offered for preschoolers and children entering kindergarten through entering twelfth grade. "Campers spend their time enjoying outdoor investigations and fun hands-on learning opportunities," says Museum Director Charles Knight.

Visit <http://www.mdwfp.com/museum> for camp details and to register beginning March 1, 2019. Spaces are limited to keep the camps hands-on.

- Preschool Camp: Pre-K campers, ages three-four, investigate the museum grounds hiking, exploring, meeting live animals, and creating fun crafts. In a guided and creative setting, children discover how exciting and fun the great outdoors can be! Campers must be potty trained.

- Go Outdoors ... Camp! Engages young campers in outdoor nature activities including hiking, aquatic adventures, and nature inspired games and crafts. Campers will learn wildlife identification, explore wetlands, and encounter native wildlife while making new friends and memories. This camp offers several age appropriate sessions for ages entering 5K – entering the sixth grade.

Retail Furniture Business Opens on the Square

DAVE Says By Dave Ramsey

Zero percent interest?
 Dear Dave,
 I know you're against financing purchases. However, is it okay to finance things like furniture at zero percent interest?

debt like the plague. It destroys your most powerful wealth-building tool—your income.

Dear Detrick,
 We just finished an extensive study of more than 10,000 millionaires. Not a single one of these folks said they became rich by borrowing money to buy things at zero percent interest. Since none of those millionaires gave credit for their wealth to zero percent interest financing, and since we know banks charge interest on loans, how is it you think these people are loaning money at "zero percent interest?"

Explaining the envelopes
 Dear Dave,
 I've listened to you for a little while, but I was wondering about the envelope system you recommend. How does it work?

Is it possible the pricing of the item has the interest rate built into it? I think the chances of that are pretty high. If not that, companies offering this kind of financing have very accurate and highly researched data that tells them the vast majority of people who take out zero-percent loans don't pay off the loans in the specified period of time. Do you know what happens if you don't live up to the terms of those contracts? It becomes a regular loan, and they back charge you for the interest.

Don't let the word "system" intimidate you. It's just grandma's old-fashioned, common sense way of budgeting money.

Back in the day, many people were paid in cash at their jobs. Then, they would take the money home and divide it up into different envelopes. The envelopes held cash for different categories in their budgets—food, clothes, rent, and other bills and such. When a particular envelope was empty they stopped buying that item, because the money budgeted for that category was gone. If you wanted a dress, but the clothing envelope was empty, you didn't buy a dress that month.

It's just a simple cash system that, combined with doing a written monthly budget, will help keep you from overspending!

Outdoor Truths By Gary Miller

Both fishing and hunting are in a lull. Hunting is pre-turkey season and the fish have been washed to Florida due to all the flooding here lately. Our lakes are above summer pool. It's crazy. As I write, another wave of rain has come through, with more to follow. Looks like Spring will have plenty of water for the new growth. I am waiting on a few days of dry weather to see if I can put in a small food plot for the turkey. I need some extra attraction due to the small farm I'm hunting. These birds roam so much; a patch of chicory and oats are sure to keep them within distance during the upcoming season. I can remember when I once owned a small farm. There were plenty of deer, but my property was simply a travel corridor until I added a few food plots. After that, my place become home. Food, water, and a good bedding area was all they really needed. It was quality and not quantity that made the difference. It's the same for us.

been born to people and in places that almost insure success. Others are blessed with certain skills and gifts that allow them to prosper more quickly than others. And some just seem to be in the right place at the right time. To say life is fair, is ignoring the obvious. Life is not fair. God is not fair. Jesus was not fair. But it's ok, because the question is this. "What do I do with what I have and who I am?" James, the brother of Jesus, said if you are one of those who have been blessed with a "bigger farm," be humble and don't hoard. You are to be a thankful conduit of blessings to those who may not even own a farm, or who may not even have a big enough food plot. And you are to do it, without judgement. If you are the one whose farm is small or who may not even have a farm, you are not to envy or judge the one who has more. You are to do two things: First of all, as much as possible, use what you have to make your place better. And secondly, understand, that while God has not blessed people equally here; one day He will make it right. And I sort of believe, he may even turn the tables. So, whether we have much or little; the focus of our life should be on its quality – whether that is in making the most of what we've been given or helping others out of the abundance we have been blessed with.
