Main Street in search of enthusiastic volunteers

Special to The Clinton Courier

Volunteers are the heartbeat and driving force of the Main Street Clinton organization. From project coordinators to committee members to an extra set of hands on event days, volunteers are vital pieces in the revitalization efforts for the Clinton community.

Long-time residents and newcomers, students and seniors – people of all ages and interests – have been part of the thousands of Main Street Clinton volunteers that have helped to better the community over the last decade.

The organization is looking for new volunteers to help out. Interested individuals are encouraged to attend a volunteer recruitment meeting on Tuesday, January 22, at 6 p.m. at the Olde Towne Depot. Attendees will learn about the many events and projects in which they can be involved, as well as find out about future plans for the Main Street districts.

Call Main Street Clinton at 601-924-5472 for more information.
