

Olde Towne Rail Club sets April 20 meeting

Special to The Clinton Courier

The Olde Towne Rail Club's second quarterly meeting will take place Saturday, April 20, at 10 a.m. at the Olde Towne Depot. For train enthusiasts and railroad fanatics, the club will discuss upcoming events and opportunities for members to get involved.

The meeting is open to the public, and anyone with an interest in railroad history or trains is encouraged to attend.

For more information or questions concerning the meeting, contact the Olde Towne Depot at 601-924-0113.

May Makers Market set for May 11th

Special to The Clinton Courier

Clintonians are encouraged to save the date for the Main Street Clinton May Makers Market, set for Saturday, May 11, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. The family-friendly atmosphere invites the community to gather in Olde Towne Clinton while shopping with local artists, craftsmen and vendors. Falling on Mother's Day weekend, it offers an opportunity to find a one-of-a-kind gift for the special day. Shoppers can enjoy a variety of handmade and unique items, food and fun with family and friends and can grab lunch or a snack at any Olde Towne restaurant or from one of the many market food vendors.

A new name was given to the market in 2019 in hopes of highlighting true artists and makers. As shopping and décor trends have shifted back toward more unique and handmade items, the Makers Market theme seeks to attract talented artisans who have carefully mastered their craft and focused on providing a beautiful handmade product.

Proud owners of vintage automobiles, as well as some mid-century classic models, will cruise-in to display their cars during the market. Spectators and enthusiasts can get a good look at the beautiful automobiles and talk with the owners.

Vendor booths are still available, and the deadline to submit an application for approval is May 5. Applications may be obtained online at www.mainstreetclintonms.com/market or by calling the Main Street Clinton office at 601-924-5472.
