Business & Education Summit set for June 21

Special to The Clinton Courier

Clinton school leaders are inviting area employers to share feedback on workforce development at the upcoming Business and Education Summit.

"We are about to start construction on a $16 million expansion to Clinton High School to house Career and Technical Education classes," said Dr. Tim Martin, superintendent of schools. "As move forward in this process, we need feedback from the business community on how we can best prepare students for the workforce."

The Summit will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday, June 21, in the cafeteria at the Clinton Public School District Central Office, 201 Easthaven Drive in Clinton. There is no cost to attend, and lunch is provided.

To get a headcount for lunch, all attendees must register online: <http://ow.ly/MAqz50ryrKJ>

The event will include a presentation by Secretary of State Delbert Hosemann on results of the annual Y'all Business Survey, as well as presentations from the Mississippi Development Authority and the State Workforce Investment Board. Also planned is a facilitated discussion with educators and employers on skills training at Clinton High School and workforce development needs in the Clinton area.

"If you are having trouble finding qualified employees, we want to know," Martin said. "Tell us any specific things that need to be addressed. We want to start a conversation, so that both the businesses and our students will benefit."

The Clinton Chamber of Commerce is encouraging its members to attend the summit, and the Mississippi Association for Partners in Education is coordinating event registration.

Other partnering agencies include the Mississippi Development Authority, Hinds Community College, Mississippi College, Mansell Media, the Froghead Grill and Century 21 David Stevens.

CPSD seeks business partners for Teacher Incentive Program

Special to The Clinton Courier

The Clinton Public School District is seeking business partners for the annual Teacher Incentive Package program.

In this program, businesses are asked to offer across-the-board discounts or one-time promotions for Clinton educators.

"In years past, we asked local businesses to print flyers that were assembled into bags to give our teachers when they return in August," said Sandi Beason, CPSD Public Information Officer and program organizer. "Now, this program is paperless, and flyers will be emailed directly to teachers."

CPSD uses a service called PeachJar to send out electronic flyers to parents and employees. PeachJar is used during the school year to replace paper flyers that traditionally went home in backpacks. PeachJar is used for the Teacher Incentive Package as part of the district's larger goal of going paperless.

There is no fee to participate. The only requirement is that flyers be submitted by the July 26 deadline.

"Teachers really appreciate the support from local businesses," Beason said. "We get great feedback every year from educators as well as participating businesses."

All partnering businesses will receive social media recognition as well as a sign suitable for framing or posting online stating that they support Clinton teachers.

For more information or to submit flyers, email sbeason@clintonpublicschools.com, or call 601-924-7533.
