

Ask A Trooper

TRP. JESSE GRABOW Minnesota State Patrol Safety Education Officer

Question: I came across the Minnesotan law that states animals cannot be kept in vehicles in a manner that endangers their safety. I also came across certain cities' laws that states you cannot idle your vehicle with the keys inside. Can you talk about pet safety, especially when the temperatures are high?

Answer: There is a Minnesota law that says a person may not leave a dog or a cat unattended in a standing or parked motor vehicle in a manner that endangers the pet's health or safety. A peace officer, a humane agent, a dog warden, or a volunteer or professional member of a fire or rescue department may use reasonable force to enter a motor vehicle and remove a dog or cat.

Please use caution and always look out for your pet's wellbeing and safety. Consider the following options:

- Leave your pet at home whenever possible.
- Arrange to have someone stay in the vehicle with the pet with the engine and air conditioner running.
- Check with the business, as they may allow you to bring in your pet while shopping.

Below is a chart on how fast the inside of your vehicle can heat up. This study also found that cracking the windows had very little effect on the temperature rise inside the vehicle.

Please do not leave your pet unattended in a vehicle, even for a short period as it could cause a serious medical condition

As far as leaving your vehicle running unattended, there is no state law that prohibits it, but most cities and counties have local ordinances against it. Check your local ordinances in reference to this rule.

A portion of state statutes were used with permission from the Office of the Revisor of Statutes. # Blood emergency: Red Cross issues urgent call for blood and platelet donors

Less than three-day supply of most blood types; new and existing donors called to help save lives

Following a difficult Fourth of July week for blood and platelet donations and ongoing challenges finding new blood donors, the American Red Cross now faces a blood shortage and has issued an emergency call for eligible individuals of all blood types to give now and prevent delays in medical care.

About 450 fewer blood drives were organized by businesses and other community groups last week than during a typical week as people across the country celebrated the holiday with activities and travel. This led to about 17,000 fewer blood donations than needed for patients in a single week, causing the Red Cross to now have less than a three-day supply of most blood types available – and less than a two-day supply of type O blood – for patients. At least a five-day supply is desired.

"Medical emergencies and critical treatments don't stop for holiday celebrations. Patients depend on lifesaving blood transfusions every day," said Cliff Numark, senior vice president, Red Cross Blood Services. "Right now, the Red Cross only has less than a three-day supply when we need a five-day supply to be prepared for all situations that require blood products. To help meet this need, we've added about 8,000 additional appointments at blood donation centers and community blood drives over the next few weeks to accommodate more donors. But we need people to fill those appointments, please join us today.'

Missing Types sees encouraging response, but all donors needed now

In June, the Red Cross launched the Missing Types campaign to encourage donors – especially new donors and those who have not donated in the past years – to give blood or platelets during the challenging summer months. Through the campaign, the letters A, B and O - letters that make up the main blood groups – disappeared from popular brands to symbolize what happens when blood goes missing from hospital shelves during blood short-

Despite an encouraging response to the campaign, blood donations still fell short of expectations in June, resulting in more than 24,000 fewer donations than needed, more than 650 fewer here in the North Central Blood Services Region, and causing a significant draw down of the Red Cross blood supply. "Blood is only available when generous blood and platelet donors roll up a sleeve to give, and right now, all donors – especially those give have never given or haven't given in a while – are urged to make an appointment to give today," Numark added.

How to help

Donors of all blood types, especially type O, are urged to make an appointment to donate using the Blood Donor App, at RedCrossBlood. org or by calling 1-800-RED (1-800-733-2767). CROSS Donation appointments and completion of a RapidPass online health history questionnaire are encouraged to NOTICE OF AND ORDER help reduce the time it takes FOR HEARING ON PETITION to donate.

Those interested in hosting a blood drive can learn more and sign up to sponsor a drive this summer by visiting Red-CrossBlood.org/HostADrive.

and was put on life support where he received more than 74 blood and platelet transfusions. "Other people's blood helped save his life 10 times over," said his mother, Kelsey Ferguson. "I'm so grateful to blood donors for helping save my son's life. You never know when you will be the one in need and when you are you hope it's available.'
