Ho, Ho, Ho!

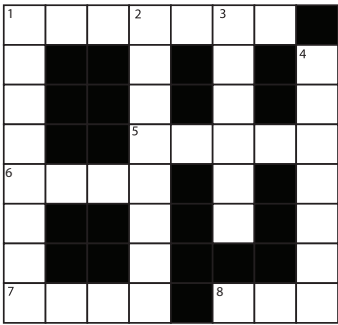

There have been many great artists in America, including Thomas Nast. Nast was born in Germany in 1840 and came to America as a child. He loved to draw and spent most of his life illustrating for newspapers, magazines and other works. He created many well-known cartoons, including some of Santa Claus for Harper's Weekly magazine.

Nast illustrated Santa for the magazine for over 20 years. He started during the Civil War, showing Santa giving out presents to soldiers and preparing to slide down the chimney. He drew Santa at the North Pole and later at his workshop at the North Pole.

Nast gave Santa a face. He was one of the first to put Santa on paper, giving people a glimpse of jolly old man with the long, white beard.
