miles," Cain said, noting that Class 1A high school girls run two miles in cross country. "Then it depends if she's having any problems breathing. If it wasn't for that, she would be running in the low 12-minute range."

Cain said the Priddy girls have been solid at their top positions, but need higher finishes from their Nos. 4-5 runners if they want to qualify for the state meet for the first time since 2016.

"We should be strong with Sydney, Lindsey and Emma," Cain said. "We need more consistency from our No. 4 and 5 runners. Any of them are capable of stepping up and filling those positions."

Evant and Blanket have strong individuals, but Cain figures Priddy has a solid chance to win the District 18-1A team title.

Like most teams, the Lady Pirates are behind in their conditioning because the coronavirus pandemic forced athletes to train on their own.

"With the young girls coming in, we have a good chance to win district and qualify for state," Cain said. "But the layoff with no track season and no offseason really put us behind. We're not in shape like we normally are going into this season. The potential is there, but we're not ready right now.

"We're not in shape, but our girls work hard. We've got a chance to be really good for a few years in a row now."
