Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon
 II Kings 24, 25; II Chronicles 36; Jeremiah 21-52; Daniel 1-4

Nebuchadnezzar was king of Babylon while Jehoiakim, Jehoiachin and Zedekiah were kings in Judah. Nebuchadnezzar put Zedekiah on the throne in Jerusalem after he took Jehoiachin captive. He was in power in the time of Esther, and the prophets Jeremiah, Ezekiel and Daniel. It has been written of Nebuchadnezzar that he was the greatest of the Babylonian kings. The bible shows him to be one of the foreign rulers used by God for His purposes in the lives of the Israelites. In his victories over the Israelites, he was accomplishing God's purposes. Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego were in the fire furnace while captives in Babylon under King Nebuchadnezzar. His weaknesses are said to be that he thought of himself as a god and was persuaded to build an image of gold that all were to worship, he became very proud which led to him being insane, and he tended to forget how God had demonstrated His power before him.
