to begin his mission working for Protective Security.

In 2017, Nick begin working with the Pro-protective Security Detail for the US Ambassa-dor. He first started working in Iraq on a 2-year mission.

While working in Iraq, he was assigned his first Explosive Detec-tion Dog, Drago. Dra-go is a German Shep-herd and is described by Nick as being a “great dog”. However, vets and others no-ticed a limp in her and from there Drago was retired early. She then came back to the USA to stay with Nick, but now lives with Nick’s sister Kara and her husband Josh Brans-cum and their chil-dren.

In 2019, Nick took a small break to spend time with some fam-ily.

However, at the start of 2020, Nick began work in Afghanistan. He has obtained a new K9 dog which is a Bel-gian Malinois. This dog is named Zipp, and he is 2-years-old.

Nick stated that he and a team, along with the K9 dogs, are there to make sure meeting areas for government officials are secure. He said he is also there for luggage checks, entry point checks, checks cars for bombs, and looks for anything that may be out of charac-ter.

“I enjoy working with dogs,” Nick said of why he enjoys his job. “I was a dog handler at the Sheriff’s Department. So, I knew I wanted the dogs to be a part of what I was going to be doing. I also like seeing other areas of the world and enjoy seeing other people’s cultures and how they live. I also love being able to keep the United States safe and government offi-cials.”

Know the Four Uses of Cash

It’s important to have cash available for your everyday spend-ing and the inevitable rainy day. However, you also need to develop a cash strategy that can contribute to your long-term financial success. But just how much cash do you need? And in what form?

To answer these questions, it’s useful to look at the four main uses of cash:

- Everyday spending – Your everyday spending includes the cash you use for your mortgage, utilities, groceries and so on. As a general guideline, you should have one to two months of living expenses available during your working years, and perhaps a year’s worth of living expenses when you’re re-tired. (The latter can be adjusted higher or lower based on your income from Social Security or a pension.) You’ll need instant access to this money – and you need to know your principal is protected – so it may be a good idea to keep the funds in a checking or cash management account.

- Unexpected expenses and emergencies – If you needed a major car repair or a new furnace, or if you incurred a big bill from a doctor or dentist, would you be able to handle the cost? You could – if you’ve set up an emergency fund. During your working years, this fund should be big enough to cover three to six months of living expenses; when you’re retired, you may be able to get by with one to three months’ worth of expenses, assuming you have additional sources of available cash. You’ll want your emergency fund to be held in liquid vehicles that protect your principal, such as savings or money market accounts or short-term certificates of de-posit (CDs).

- Specific short-term savings goal(s) – At various points in your life, you may have a specific goal – a new car, vacation, wedding, etc. – that you’d like to reach within a year or two. Your first step is to identify how much money you’ll need, so think about all the factors affecting the final cost. Next, you’ll need to choose an appropriate savings vehicle. You could simply put more money in the accounts you use for everyday cash, or even in your emergency fund, but you would run the risk of dipping into either of these pools. Instead, consider opening a separate account – and tell yourself this money is for one purpose only.

- Source of investment – You can use cash in two ways as part of your overall investment strategy. First, cash can be con-sidered part of the fixed-income allocation of your portfolio (i.e., bonds and CDs). Because cash behaves differently from other asset classes – such as stocks and bonds – it can help diversify your holdings, and the more diversified you are, the less impact market volatility may have on your portfolio. (However, diversification can’t guarantee a profit or protect against all losses.) The second benefit of cash, in terms of investing, is it’s there for you to purchase a new investment or to add more shares in an existing investment. In any case, you probably don’t want to be too cash heavy, so you might want to keep no more than 10% of your fixed-income assets in cash.

As you can see, cash can be valuable in several ways – so use it wisely.
