

Lady Laker Golf

As golfers take to courses around the area, it's only fitting to review this past season of Russell County Lady Laker Golf.

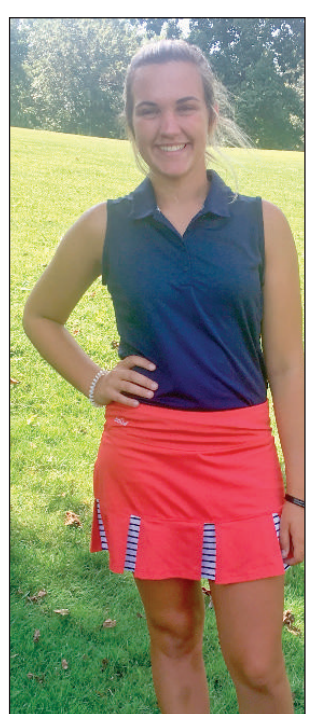

The Lady Laker Golf program has a tradition of excellence, and the 2019-2020 season was no different. The team took second place at a tournament in Green County and brought home a second-place trophy from region play. Senior Kamryn Richardson advanced to state and competed during both days of that competition.

Awards were given during a team banquet. Kamryn Richardson earned the Most Valuable Player Award and also received the Lowest Average Award. The Most Improved Award went to Madalyn Wright. Coaches Award went to Brenna Trautman, Audrey Burton and McKenzie Trautman both took home the Most Consistent Award and the Best Attitude Award recipient was Emily Coe.

Lady Laker Golf wishes to thank these generous community sponsors that donated for the tournament that the team host each year at Lakewood Country Club. Those sponsors were First National Bank, Lindsey Wilson College, Jax's Cool Convenience, Onyon Family Revocable Trust, Campbellsville University, Duo Broadband, Selby Asphalt, Hubbard's Building Supply, Branscum Construction, Bank of Jamestown, Stephens Pipe and Steel, Montgomery Furniture, Coe's Towing and Henson Ace Hardware.

Coach Melinda Wright is hopeful about the upcoming season of play for another talented group of young ladies.

2020 Census – Don't Forget the Children

According to the US Census Bureau, children were one of the most under-counted groups in the 2010 Census, so the Census Bureau is working hard to make sure we get the word out about counting young children.

Census results inform decisions on funding for the next 10 years for programs and services, including those that affect children such as schools, libraries, and nutrition assistance.

Yet young children are among groups historically undercounted in decennial censuses. In the 2010 Census, there was a net undercount of nearly 1 million (or 4.6% of) children under age five, making them one of the largest population groups undercounted in the United States.

It is vital that all young children, including newborns born on or before April 1, 2020, are included when their parents or guardians respond to the census.

Many programs that receive funding based on census data directly impact the wellbeing of children. This includes programs like Head Start, K-12 schools, nutrition assistance, and many others. Knowing how many children live in an area can greatly influence the placement of new schools, libraries, hospitals, and more – which can all have an impact on children for their entire lifetime.

Do you have young children in your home? Be sure to count them in the right place. Here are some guidelines to help you respond to the 2020 Census:

- Count children in the home where they live and sleep most of the time, even if their parents do not live there.

- If children divide their time between more than one household, count them where they stay most often. If they evenly divide their time or you don't know where they stay most often, count them where they were staying on April 1.

- If a child's family (or guardian) was or is temporarily staying somewhere and plans to return to their former address, count the child at their usual residence.

- If a child's family (or guardian) has moved permanently after April 1, count children at the address where they lived on April 1.

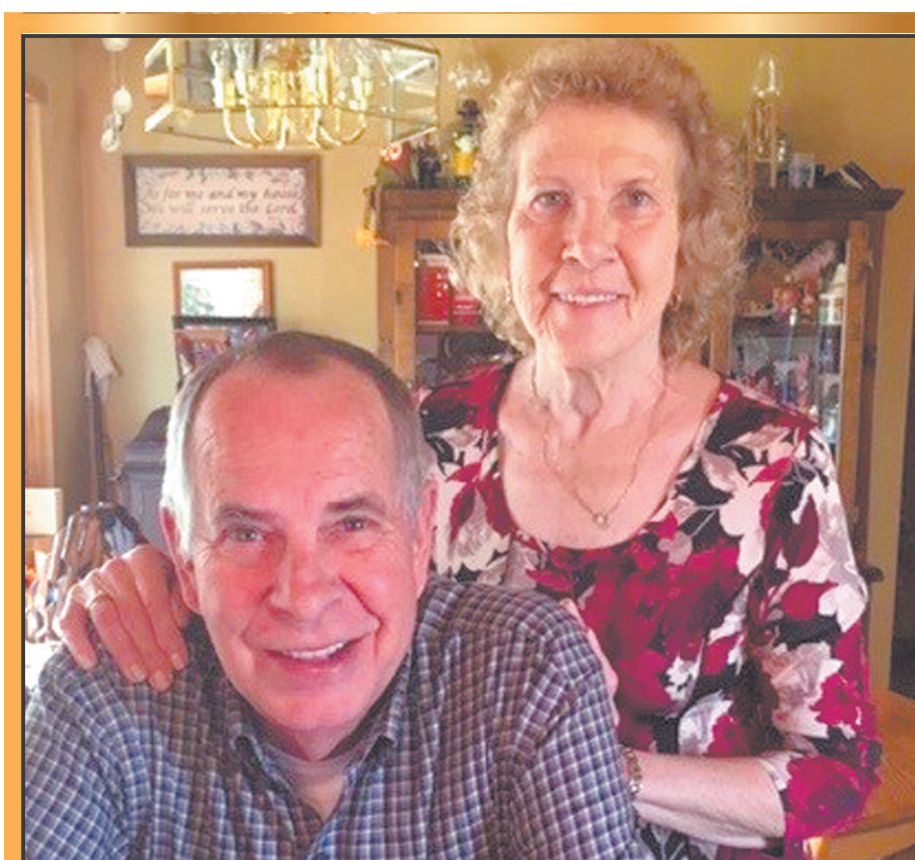

- Count children in your home if they do not have a permanent place to live and were staying in your home on April 1, even if they were only staying with you temporarily.

- Count babies born on or before April 1 at the home where they live and sleep most of the time (even if they were still in the hospital on April 1).
