

Joseph Gordon Rogers, Jr., 67

Joseph Gordon Rogers Jr., better known as "Little Joe," son of the late Joseph Gordon Rogers (Joe) and Ruth Sartin Rogers, was born July 19, 1952 in Campbellsville, and departed this life Friday, Jan. 17 at the University of Kentucky Hospital in Lexington.

Known for his quick wit, infectious smile, and the ability to make everyone feel special, Joe made a positive and lasting impact on everyone he encountered. He had made a profession of faith and was a member of Greensburg United Methodist Church. Joe was a successful, retired insurance agent winning many awards and accolades for his 30 plus years of service in the industry.

In his spare time, Joe enjoyed playing and listening to music of all types. His family loved when he pulled out his guitar and played and sang all his favorite tunes. Joe was most proud of his children, Josh Rogers of Nashville, Tenn. and Kayla Daniels (Mike) of Greensburg. His favorite title was "Granddratty" to his precious grandchildren, Maggie, Cale and Darby Kate. His sisters and brother were his very best friends and they enjoyed spending time together, with Joe always serving as the life of the party with an inappropriate joke or humorous one liner to keep everyone on their toes.
