

Le Bonté Women's Club learns about gubernatorial history

Special to The Clinton Courier

"What Mark Do You Leave?" was the topic explored by historian Nick Walters at a recent Le Bonté Women's Club meeting. The guest speaker is shown with members (l to r) Paula Wimbish, Serena Calhoun and Ruth Ann Broome. Walters informed his audience about his search for the graves of Mississippi's deceased governors. He shared highlights about a number of the fifty-seven men who have served in the state's highest political office. Some graves can be found locally, with three graves located in Lakewood Memorial and seven in Greenwood Cemetery in Jackson. Governor John J. McRae's grave is in Belize. His searches have resulted in former governors contacting him with questions about the various burial sites for their predecessors in the gubernatorial office.
