

Kinders Sharing Heritage, Making Family Traditions

Whether one is creating new family traditions, or enjoying something that is part of their heritage, those memories last a lifetime. Sharing them with others gives them a little insight of where we come from. As the Record-Review does for every Streetlight edition, we thought going to the experts on this topic would be our best option.

Kindergartners from Atkinson Elementary School were asked to share some their family's favorite tradition. They could be things that are part of their heritage or even new traditions. Throughout this special publication you will find responses to this question.

Read on to learn more about your neighbors and their traditions from this group of Barnesville's younger citizens.

Allison Willers' class:

Lila Martinez - On Christmas, we always go to my grandma's house. I help my sister open her presents.
