

Funeral Planning

Peace of mind
for you &
your family

Pre-Planning Your Funeral:

- Do you know what your options are?
- Does your family know your wishes?

Talking about life when you're gone isn't easy, but doing so can make it easier for your loved ones in your absence.

BE CONSIDERATE TO THOSE WHO CARE ABOUT YOU.

Funeral and cemetery planning before the need arises is a thoughtful step, considerate of those who care about you. Providing clear direction about your personal wishes assures they won't be left to wonder about what you may have preferred. It spares them from making sometimes-difficult decisions at an always-difficult time.

INVEST A BIT OF YOUR TIME

With genuine professionals, it should be a straight-forward process that can require nothing more than your willingness to invest a bit of your time.

Planning gives you the luxury of time and time is important. Time to think through your options. Time to discuss things with your family, your friends, or your trusted advisors. Time to reconsider. Time to make changes. Time to assure that everything is, as you want them to be.

You should never be pressed to make final decisions before you're fully comfortable with them. If you are, it's fair to wonder why. And perhaps consider alternatives.

You deserve the care and attention of those who listen carefully, suggest thoughtfully and guide with concern and openness; hometown friends who are truly interested in what you find important and meaningful.

With Glenn Family Services you will find career planning specialists who are ethically trained and knowledgeable professionals, fully committed to our policies of straight talk, honest information, direct answers, and never ever any pressure. Never. Ever.
