The Allen's Inn has previously housed several different businesses, including offices for an attorney and physician, and is now being renovated by Jay Shofner who is planning to open it later this year. While the exterior of the building has changed over the years, the original entrance is being restored in preparation for the re-opening.

On the square: Allen's Inn to open this year

Jay Shofner recently updated the local Rotary Club about the progress of the renovation of Allen's Inn on the square in downtown Greensburg. Following last Fall's vote which legalized the sale of alcohol in Green County, Shofner is planning to open two businesses in the renovated building located on the east side of the square, which most previously served as the offices of Dr. Robert Shuffett. Package sales will be offered in the section renamed The Vault, which will be located on the corner of the building facing the historic courthouse and East Main Street. Shofner hopes that these package sales will be available in late Spring if the renovation continues on schedule. He also told Rotary members last week that Green County will probably see alcohol on the shelves in various stores sometime in March, depending on when licenses are issued. Sales by the drink will be located in the adjacent room of Allen's Inn but Shofner knows that this will be a reality much later in the year as he hopes to have it up and running by Cow

Days 2021.
