Human Kindness

Dr. Angelia Bryant
Licensed Clinical Counselor

This week, the second vaccine was administered to myself and my colleagues — who are mental health care workers. We were told we would get sick if the first vaccine was working. Then, all that can be said, is that it is working. Most of us had at least one day feeling sick. For me, it was worth it. If I can do this small act of humankindness to stop the spread of this virus, I am willing to do it. I know many are uncertain about taking the vaccine. I would definitely do it again because it is a simple act of humankindness.

Franklin Roosevelt once said, "Human kindness has never weakened the stamina or softened the fiber of a free people. A nation does not have to be cruel to be tough". Human-kindness is one of those attributes that makes a person beautiful. People who are kind go out of their way to help others not because they have to, but because it's the right thing to do.

Genuinely good people do random acts of kindness in silence, without expecting anything in return. When you think about becoming the best version of yourself, this type of behavior should be among the first things to consider. An act of Humankindness goes a long way. Not only that it has a positive effect on others, but it will also make your day. It's powerful that way — you get your reward as soon as you manage to replace a tear in someone's eyes with a smile. That feeling is priceless as you practice Humankindness.

Growing into a better person doesn't just happen on its own. Show your Human-kindness by example, in all things, no matter how small they seem, will help you turn into a kinder and happier person.

Kindness is an act of humanity that shows that in spite of all the madness that this world is, there's still good in people's hearts. So be kind whenever and to whomever you can. This world has far too many people unaware of the greatness in serving others through Humankindness.

Remember, Hosea 11:4, "I led them with cords of kindness, with the bands of love, and I became to them as one who eases the yoke on their jaws, and I bent down to them and fed them".

Seeking Hope for 2021 in Faith and Love. Love God and All People. Amen.
