One year of change, unknown and a year that challenged an entire realm of life aspects. Hardships and heartache have plagued Kentucky, but also inspired.

The Green Taylor Water District witnessed the cessation with financial stability sprinkled throughout their community. In addition to the offered payment arrangements for customers who struggled to pay their water bills as a direct result of the pandemic, the employees still questioned, “How can we give back to our community?”

GTWDEmployeeJan Pierce and coworkers talked about changes they’ve noticed within the community.

“Giving back was the topic of the office one December day,” said Pierce. “Shortly after, the suggestion of a Blessing Box at GTWD was born, we knew it was perfect & ran with it!”

GTWD General Manager, Andrew Tucker, presented the Blessing Box idea to the GTWD board in January 2021. The board unanimously approved the idea, plans were created, and the box was built.

“We want to set a positive example in the community as servants,” said Tucker. “We are able to touch many lives with our services but there’s is always more that can be done!”

Employees stayed late a number of evenings until the Blessing Box was completed.

The materials were all donated by GTWD employees.

Tentatively, dependent on weather, the box installation should be completed this week. The community is invited to help fill the box. In-date, shelf stable, non-perishable food items, snack items, hygiene, feminine products are welcomed and encouraged.

The GTWD Blessing Box located on the left side of GTWD’s building will operate on the honor system, take what you need, leave what you can.

This is the second permanent Blessing Box constructed in Green County. The first Blessing Box is located across from Green County PVA, in the Greensburg United Methodist Church parking lot.

Employees built the box themselves, working on their own time, and utilizing personally donated materials.

All GTWD employees agree the box would be a great way to give back to the community and want everyone to either donate, or gather items needed from the box.
