

FFA roots don't end at graduation

“ FFA is the reason I am where I am today. My advisor, who I worked for in high school pushed me to go to college and earn my degree. The leadership skills I learned from FFA shaped my future. I have a lot to be thankful for but beyond any shadow of a doubt God, Agriculture and FFA are the root of much of my success.”

— Ben Davenport
 1995 GCHS alumni, FFA member 1991-1995,
 Vice President Junior, Senior years,
 Current Green County High School Principal and Farmer

“ I had alot of fun in FFA, to be surrounded by a group who and he love farming as much as I do was a great experience. My teacher was Vernon Clark.”

— William Earl McKinney
 1969 GCHS alumni,
 Lifelong farmer

“ I enjoyed FFA under Vernon Clark. He was an excellent teacher, ask him a question and he always had an answer, a nice guy. There were times to joke and times to be serious.”

— Morris Whitlow
 1968 GCHS alumni,
 Retired from Operating Union 181 out of Louisville,
 Superintendent

“ From all the memories going on trips, shows and visiting different farms with FFA I learned that everything to do with farming is multi generational. When I looked at my own life I realized I wanted to follow in my dads foot steps and hopefully one day have kids that want to follow mine.”

— Corey Scott, 2012 GCHS alumni,
 Currently owns chicken houses, grain, and cattle business

“ FFA opened so many doors for my future. Mr. Lobb and Mr. Bonta literally drove me around the state to contests, events, and conferences allowing me to meet people and build connections that I still depend on today. Working in agriculture is like working with a big family. Everyone knows everyone. By building those relationships in high school, through the FFA program, I was able to get scholarships for college, an ag teaching job and now work for Oklahoma Farm Bureau. Agriculture Education helps you learn hard work, problem solving, money management communication and life skills that every high school student needs. Through the lessons we learned in class and the FFA contests and events, you become a young adult ready to enter the real world armed with the skills you need to succeed in life. FFA isn't just a course, it is a life changer.”

— Holly Carroll, 2002 GCHS alumni,
 Currently Employed with Oklahoma Farm Bureau:
 Director of Membership and the Foundation for Agriculture
