

Barbara Ann Heiskell, 82

Barbara Ann Heiskell, age 82 of Bardstown and Greensburg, passed into the arms of our Lord and Savior in the early morning hours of Friday, March 19, 2021 when she was finally reunited with her husband whom she had dearly missed.

Barbara was an accomplished gardener and relished preserving her garden bounty to share with others. She enjoyed all types of knit work, sewing, and crafting. She was known by all to be a wonderful cook and was the happiest when she was serving meals to family and friends. She was an avid reader who was drawn to books about the Amish and stories set in the early 20th century.

Barbara worked 20 years for the Jefferson County School system and it was from there that she retired shortly after her husband retired. She was a devoted servant of the Lord and found joy not only as a deacon's helpmate but also as a children's Sunday school teacher and VBS leader.

Barbara was born

Barbara joined her husband Bobby in Roanoke, Va. where he was stationed and they lived there for several years. After her husband's military service, they returned to Louisville where they started and raised their family. They then began to purchase farms in Green County and these farms soon became a weekend getaway full of fun and friendships.

Barbara and "Bobby" were married for 66 years.

Barbara is proceeded in death by her husband , Robert D. Heiskell, Sr.; her parents, John William Madison, Sr. and Elizabeth L. She was blessed with four grandchildren: Tiffani Alexandria Heiskell, Shelby Elizabeth Heiskell, Madison Layne Heiskell, and Robert D. "Trey" Heiskell III; and four great- grandchildren: Carson Philip Mays, Ainsley Elizabeth Mays, Aubrey Alexandria Dick, and our miracle baby Griffin "Moon Pie" Ray Leake. How Can Women Overcome Obstacles to Financial Security?

On March 8, we observed International Women's Day, a celebration of the social, economic, cultural and political achievements of women. Of course, women still tend to encounter more obstacles than men in the pursuit of financial security. Let's consider a few of them.

To begin with, women are still more likely to leave the workforce, at least temporarily, to raise children, resulting in lower contributions to employer-sponsored retirement plans such as 401(k)s. And women are often the ones who become full-time caregivers of aging parents or other relatives. Caregiving duties can exact a big financial toll: The lost wages, pensions (including 401(k)s and similar plans) and Social Security benefits that a woman loses to become a full-time caregiver amount to more than $300,000 over her lifetime, according to the National Academy of Sciences.

Women also may be more susceptible to financial downturns. Consider the COVID-19 pandemic: Just a few months ago, in December, women lost 156,000 jobs, while men gained 16,000, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which also reported that women accounted for 54% of the jobs lost from the pandemic in 2020.

And women are not unaware of their circumstances and outlook. Just 41% of women are confident about retirement, compared with 56% of men, according to a survey by Edward Jones and Age Wave.

But if you're a woman, you can take steps to help improve your financial outlook. Here are a few suggestions:

Take full advantage of retirement plans. If you are still working and your employer offers a 401(k) or similar retirement plan, take full advantage of it. Put in as much as you can afford each year and increase your contributions when your salary goes up. Also, within your plan, you'll want to choose the mix of investments that can help provide the most growth potential, given your individual risk tolerance. Also, even if you contribute to a 401(k) or similar plan, you may also be eligible to fund an IRA, which gives you even more investment choices.

Evaluate your Social Security options. You can typically start taking Social Security benefits when you're 62, but your monthly checks will be much larger if you wait until your "full" retirement age, which will likely be between 66 and 67. You might also consider whether you'd be better off by taking spousal benefits, if you're married and your spouse earned more money than you. You're generally even eligible for spousal benefits if you are divorced, as long as you were married at least 10 years and you haven't remarried.

Look for unexpected income opportunities. Even after you've formally retired, you may still find ways to receive some earned income. Perhaps you can work part time or do some consulting. And if you're a caregiver, you might be able to receive some compensation for your work. Many local governments pay non-spouse caregivers who act as personal attendants, although the rules vary greatly by state and county.

These certainly aren't the only ways you can improve your financial status, but they may prove useful to you. In any case, be aware of the challenges facing you and do whatever you can to brighten your future.

The Mind-Body Connection

If you are someone who "lives inside your head," that is, who thinks a lot or who dwells on things, positive or negative, you are probably aware that your thoughts have an effect on your body. Thinking too much about our plans for tomorrow turns into worrying about tomorrow and keeps us awake and leads to a generally unhealthy state of mind and body. Conversely, keeping our minds focused on positive things, such as all the things we have to be thankful for, generally leads to positive feelings which suffuse the body with a sense of peace and gratitude. What fills the mind eventually makes its way into our bodies, and what fills the mind very often comes to us through our bodies. If we want to have peace of mind, therefore, we should guard our eyes, our ears, and even our mouths. What we see and hear most certainly enters our minds, but what comes out of our mouths also has its effect on our bodies. Think of the pangs of regret we have immediately after saying something unkind or imprudent. The mind-body connection works in both directions: what goes into our minds affects our bodies and what we do with our bodies affects our minds.
